Welcome to Bar Cuba

We have searched long and hard to import our comprehensive rum selection and are proud to present one of the finest and largest collection of rums in Australia. Whether you are an aficionado or a novice, we believe you will enjoy the spirit that embodies the history, character and spirit of Cuba and the Caribbean. Enjoy!

Rumbullion - Rum - Rumbustion - Rumscullion - Ron - Rhum - Rumbo

Rum is a distilled spirit made from sugarcane by-products – such as molasses and sugarcane juice – through a process of fermentation and distillation. The distillate, a clear liquid, is then usually aged in oak and other casks. While there are rum producers in places such as Australia, India, France, and elsewhere around the world, the majority of rum production occurs in and around the Caribbean and along the Demerara River in South America.

Rum plays a part in the culture of most islands of the West Indies and has famous associations with the British Royal Navy and piracy. Rum has also served as a popular medium of exchange throughout history providing economic incentive for Australia's Rum Rebellion and the American Revolution.

Rum Categorisation

Dividing rum into meaningful groupings is complicated by the fact that there is no single standard for what constitutes rum. Instead, rum is defined by the varying rules and laws of the nations that produce the spirit.

The differences in definitions include issues such as spirit strength, minimum years of ageing, and even naming standards. Despite these differences in standards and nomenclature, the style of rum production can generally be grouped according to the language that is traditionally spoken in the country of origin.

Spanish speaking islands traditionally produce light rums with a fairly clean taste. Rums from Cuba and Puerto Rico are typical of this style.

English speaking islands are known for darker rums with a fuller taste that retain a greater amount of the underlying molasses flavor. Rums from Jamaica and the Demerera region of South America are typical of this style.

French speaking islands are best known for their agricultural rums (rhum agricole). These rums, being produced exclusively from sugarcane juice, retain a greater amount of the original flavor of the sugarcane. Rums from Martinique and Guadeloupe are typical of this style.
